About Me

My name is Gonzalo Hidalgo and i'm a current student at Queens college .Design is something that i'm studying and it something that I am passionate about. Ever since i was young i always had an interest in anything that involes art/creativity. At a young age i enjoyed drawing, taking photos, and designing. As years went on I practiced my craft, gaing the knowledge of what can i do to make my work better by learning about everythigng there is about design in each of its respective feild (Photoshop, photography, Animation, Drawing). There is something good about designing that really makes me feel like i am creating something orginal. The freedom we have as designers that we can make something from our own imagination, something that represents us on how we feel, believe, and they way we want others to see us. What i like to show in my work is who i am as a person. It could be drawings of my orginal scetches or characters that i really connect with or photos of place that i been to and wanting to show my presepective on life. I believe as designers we each show our personality in our work.
